Republicans Say It's Now Congress Job To Carry Ball

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (4) President Eisenhower's State of the Union message rang the bell with a number of Democratic leaders today as well as winning practically universal acclaim among congressional Republicans. There were some sharply worded dissents among Democratic members of Senate and House, but the majority party leaders in both chambers reacted favorably. The Republicans went all-out in their praise. One commonly expressed reaction was that it is now up to Congress to carry out the program sketched in broad terms by the President. The administration was asked to submit specific proposals.

"Idealism" Is Praised

Senate Leader Johnson (D-Tex) praised the message for its "idealism" in regard to security

'It must be emphasized that it is necessary for all of us to cooperate so the scientific steps that lead to security and peace can be found and built into a pregram o action," Johnson said.

House Speaker Rayburn said the message was strong - "the strongest I think the President has presented to Congress. I'm glad to know the President is alive to what the American people are disturbed about.

House Leader McCormack said it was "a very fine message, very much like what Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman would give.'

Lourdes Shrine To Mark 100th Anniversary

By GEORGE W. CORNELL Associated Press Religion Writer

Thousands of Americans are getting set to travel a hallowed road this year - and a little child shall lead them.

Their geographical destination is a spring-flowing cave in southern

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the Roman Catholic shrine at Lourdes, and indications are that a huge, unprecedented number of pilgrims will visit the place, led there by the visions of a simple, little girl.

Over-all estimates of the total expected range from six to 10 mil-

"Catholics the world over will converge upon the grotto in the year of 1958," said the Most Rev. Leo R. Smith, auxiliary bishop of Buffalo, N.Y., who heads a group leaving later this month.

Pope Pius XII has proclaimed a year of jubilee for the period, promising special blessings to those who devoutly make the pilgrimage. He may go himself, Vatican sources say, on his first plane trip. Estimates of travel experts, widely varying, are that from 18,-000 to more than 100,000 American Catholics will make the devotional

Lourdes lies in the gently rolling foothills of the Pyrenees Mountains.

There, at the mouth of a great hollowed rock, 14-year-old Bernadette Soubirous, the sickly daughter of a poor miller, reported seeing, on Feb. 11, 1858, a vision of a woman "lovelier than I had ever

In the next six months, on 18 occasions, the child claimed she saw the beautiful young woman, who at times spoke to her. Others came to observe, but none experienced the phenomenon, except in reactions of Bernadette

The little girl said the woman told her to wash at a spring where none existed, so she scratched into the soil and water gushed forth -and still flows at 30,000 gallons

She said the woman asked that a chapel be built there, and processions made to the grotto. The child asked the woman who she was, and said she replied, "I am the Immaculate Conception.

Strong words from a child, who didn't even know their meaning in reference to the sinlessness attributed to the Virgin Mary.

An inquiry commission, named by the bishop of nearby Tarbes, to the miracle, and the place in years since has drawn millions of the faithful seeking spiritual and hysical aid.

Pope Pius has announced a plenary indulgence for all visiting the shrine, receiving the Sacrament of Penance and the Eucharist and praying for Christian unity, salvation of sinners, peace and church freedom At Lourdes, in the afternoon, pilgrims join in a procession of the Blessed Sacrament, climaxed by the blessing of the sick who come from many lands on stretchers or wheelchairs, seeking cures for their ailments.

Thousands of cures reported there have been found unexplainable by medical investigators. On the sides of the grotto and hanging from the ceiling are countless crutches and braces flung away by jubilant visitors.

In the evening, a torchlight procession moves slowly down the path to the grotto, each pilgrim singing the Ave Maria in his native tongue, each carrying a lighted candle

Inside the cave on a rock above stands a tall statue of Mary. It is made to look as if she wears a white robe, a blue girdle, a white veil falling to her waist. She holds a rosary and golden chain. She is barefooted with two roses at her feet - all just as little Bernadette said she looked 100 years

(FORD DEALERS TALK IN LOW, LOW NUMBERS)

There's nothing newer in the world of value

Most people think they've heard wrong when they hear the low, low Ford price

Who'd ever guess you could get so many finecar features in a car that's priced among the very lowest. For example, there's Ford's allnew styling that turned heads from Paris to Pakistan in a triumphant round-the-world tour. There's a totally new Interceptor V-8 engine with Precision Fuel Induction-the most important V-8 improvement in 25 years. Team it with Ford's versatile new Cruise-O-Matic Drive and you can save up to 15% on gas. Cruise-O-Matic uses a gas-saving rear axle ratio for "built-in" overdrive economy. What's more, as an option Ford brings you the level, smooth going of a true air ride . . . new Ford-Aire Suspension. But all this is only the start. Come in and get the whole picture of the "newsiest" car for 58. You'll find Ford's low, low price makes the picture perfect.

A Crowd Is A Relative Term

Regardless of all the talk of America's "exploding" population, which is serving to crowd the nation's schools, its highways and its cities, this country has several centuries to go before it will be actually crowded.

As crowded, for example, as The Netherlands, Belgium or Japan.

Currently, according to Washington estimates, the United States accommodates an average of 57 inhabitants for each one of its 3 million square miles. By comparison, The Netherlands averages 858 persons per square mile. In Belgium the figure is 753; in Japan it is 624.

Obviously every square mile of the U.S. is not inhabitable or productive. The rugged mountains, the swamps, and the deserts in most instances offer little to meet man's physical needs -now or in the future. But neither are the other crowded lands of the world without their wastelands.

Even so, there is talk already of better land utilization in America. The generations to come will have to give less of mere lip service to the

How soon will America know the crowding with which The Netherlands copes so efficiently? Not until the population of the United States has been multiplied many times over and has reached a total of 2.6 billion! This country will be as crowded as India is now when it has 900 million inhabitants, and its population will have to reach 472 million before it will be as crowded as present-day China.

But while the U. S. has space to spare, Soviet Russia has even more. Its estimated 200 million inhabitants are spread out 23 per square mile. That's less than half the U.S. figure.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

They Were So Sure

I was recently clearing out some old papers to Congress passed a so-called milimake room for new ones when I came across a letter tary reorganization bill, but the written by a physician on March 4, 1942. It is not main weaknesses have not been to give the writer's name, as he has undoubtedly by now changed his mind. The doctor wrote:

. In this article Mr. Sokolsky, in commenting on Stalin's recent speech, makes certain statements which, no matter how innocently intended are never-Peless grossly misleading and if permitted to go unchallenged, may impair a much needed unity among the Allies now fighting the Axis Powers.'

The doctor was complaining about a piece I wrote on March 2, 1942 stating that Stalin was not then an ally of the United States in a very perilous situation, but that he was playing strictly his own game, which, of course, we now all know that he

All of this is over the dam and it can mean little to me to have been proved right or wrong in 1942. Few of us are so prophetic that we can foresee the future or so analytical that we never err. It seems to be the special province of the gossip columnists to quarrel over which one first said that the marriage between Mabel Pugnose and Jack Blowhard is not taking. But in the less important affairs, such as, for instance, the rise of a new empire, imponderables such as weather or the shifting of continents may influence the course of events and change the tides of history.

Therefore historic calculations must always be made within margins of uncertainty. However there are guides and anyone who had read history and political and social history since 1948 might have been expected to recognize in 1942 that Stalin could not be a true ally of the United States and Great Britain; that in pursuit of the world revolution, he could accept the aid of the capitalist countries, but that from the standpoints both of historic determinism and selfinterest, he would ultimately have to pull away from this alliance and go his own way.

This has proved to be true and today, Soviet Russia and its satellites are enemies of the United States, working for our destruction and doing it

The historic tragedy has been that Americans, on the whole, illiterate in Marxist literature, but full of the broad humanism of the Bible and the ethical and moral ideas which emanate from the Judaic-Christian religions, rejected too early the warnings against Russia; they rejected them because it was impossible even for some of our most clever men to detect the miserable nature of this enemy.

It was for this reason that the OSS, for instance, was so viciously infiltrated by Communists. Certainly no one in his senses would think, for a moment, that General "Wild Bill" Donovan could be insensible to the dangers of Communism, but the fact remains that whereas such an organization as the OSS should have been staffed entirely, from bottom to top, by dedicated Americans, Congressional investigations of Communists, fellow-travellers and spies, bring to the fore increasing numbers of former OSS personnel. The same is true of the OWI.

In the amalgamation of our espionage and intelligence activities into the CIA, headed by Allen Dulles, a man of remarkable knowledge and capacity, it was believed that a way had been found to eliminate the dangers of wrong personnel and failure to recognize the unusual tactics of the Russians. It is very doubtful from the results, that CIA has achieved its goal and the reason is not far to seek.

The difference in mentality among peoples is not accidental; it is the entire history of civilization. It is the difference in thought between Genghis Khan and St. Francis of Assisi. It is the mixture of Mongolian and Tatar peoples which developed the force and character of the present Russian type.

And so we went soft and underestimated and misinderstood who the true enemy was and is. Therefore, in 1958, we find ourselves pouring our wealth into West Germany, Austria, Italy and Japan which we tried to destroy and impoverishing ourselves in preparation for what tooks as though it might be the most devastating war in history - the war between the United States and Soviet Russia and her satellites, including Red China.

Couldn't We Get Him To Resign?

Charlie Wilson Pooh-Poohed Idea Of Space Satellite For America

WASHINGTON - Good old Charlie Wilson, the ex-Secretary of Defense, is complaining that they're "trying to make a goat out of me" regarding the American missile snafu. If he protests too much, however, here is an incident some of his onetime

GOP friends may reveal. On Nov. 29, 1954, Wernher Von Braun, the ex-Nazi missile expert, made a speech before the Women's National Press Club in which he urged the United States to develop a satellite. The possessor of the satellite, he said. could pry out the secrets of the world. It would be a tremendous propaganda weapon.

"The nation which gets this first will rule the world," Von Braun said. He also predicted that man would be able to put a station in outer space, could then transfer to another vessel for regular excursions to the moon. Next day Secretary Wilson held a press conference, was asked about Von Braun's statement.

"Von Braun said the project could be attained in a few years if the government spent enough money on it," said Sarah Mc-Clendon of the El Paso Times, the Sherman Democrat, and other Texas papers. "Are you going to recommend that the money be spent?

"No," replied Wilson. "I would rather keep my feet on the ground, figuratively speaking as well as physically speaking. I don't know that anyone knows how you would rule the world with a space ship. It's a little dreamy, I think. I'm almost tempted to tell a story.

With a little prompting, Wilson did tell a story-about the man who stopped in front of an insane asylum to change a tire. While erating out of Cuba. an inmate watched him over the fence, the motorist accidentally stepped on his hub cap which contained the nuts to replace his tire. They went down a culvert. Noting the motorists's consternation, the inmate of the insane asylum suggested that he remove one nut from each wheel and thereby get enough nuts to replace the tire.

"What is a man with your brains doing in there!" exclaimed the grateful motorist.

"I may be crazy," replied the inmate. "but I'm not stupid." That was Charlie Wilson's reply to Von Braun regarding space

Note 1 - Remarked Longview Texas, publisher Carl Estes when he heard Jim Hagerty assert that the United States was not in a race with the Russians to achieve the space ship: "Then why aren't we in such a race? If President Roosevelt had been in the Whote House we would have been in that race and we would have won it."

Note 2-In fairness to Mr. Wilson, it should be recalled that in 1954 he was overruled by the President when he warned that a budget cut would jeopardize national defense. Again in 1955 Wilson complained that the Defense Department was being slashed dangerously. Again in 1957, he registered the same protest. Each time he was over-

On the side, he has also been dabbling in some publicity which may get him into trouble with the Securities and Exchange Commission which his father founded to protect American investors from Wall Street wolves.

Morals And Money

The National Council of Churches recently heard a fervent moral plea by a prominent Methodist layman, Charles C. Parlin, urging the return of alien property seized in the United States during World War II. There was money as well as morals behind

"Moral concepts have moved on apace since Cortez in Mexico used torture as a means of Christian conversion," declared Parlin in an outburst of moral exhortation to the Council of Churches.

What Parlin did not tell his audience, however, was that his law firm, Sherman, Sterling and Wright, has been attorney for six German corporations vitally interested in the return of alien property: Wintershall, A: G.; Salzdelfurth, A. The Jynts

By Bob Considine

SAN FRANCISCO (INS) - It gives a New Yorker a bit of a pang, even in this wonderful city, to call Market 1-2471 and hear the girl on the switchboard cheerfully answer, "San Francisco Giants! If there is any consolation attendant to the loss of a city's treasured ballclub it must come in the knowledge that it fell into good hands. If the Giants can't be in New York then San Francisco is the place for them. Old Boston Braves fans still take a measure of pride in what the Milwaukee Braves have done. And I suppose it is the same with St. Louis Browns fans and, to a degree, that vanishing breed which once followed the Philadelphia Athletics - now that those two clubs are entrenched in Baltimore and Kansas City.

The great exception to this rule is Brooklyn. Its people, I feel, will never forgive Walter O'Malley for moving the club out of Ebbets Field. A National League pennant or a World Series triumph for the Pasadena Dodgers, or whatever they will be named, can only compound that rancorthough all the fellow did by moving was illuminate the fact that baseball is a business. If he had run, let us say, an abattoir, and had failed to move it to a more profitable location, his stockholders would have had ample reason to beef. So why not baseball?

With Stoneham of the Giants, however, it still sounds like a sport. We saw him today and he never looked better, a fact which may possibly have been because he was standing next to Toots Shor. Stoneham is as excited over the San Francisco Giants as if he were a boy who had just inheritec them.

He should be.

The S F. Giants have sold 3,000 season seats at $262.50 a seat. They will have a million dollars in the bank by opening day, April 15, when they entertain - if that's the word - the Dodgers. The Seals Ballpark, where they'll play until their new stadium is completed in the spring of 1959, is small compared to the abandoned Polo Grounds in New York. Yet it is so arranged that it has 6,000 box seats whereas the much bigger place had only 3,600. Stoneham expects to average between 16,000 and 17,000 at home games this season, and season's attendance of perhaps a million and a quarter about twice as many as the Giants drew in New York in '57. The new ballpark, which should be named Stoneham Stadium instead of the suggested Polo Grounds, will cost $11,000,-000, seat 45,500, hold 11,000 cars in its parking lots, sit between two expressways, be protected as much as possible from wind and fog, command a view of the spectacular Bay. The city appropriated $5,000,000 four years ago; the remainder is being raised through a bond sale headed by the stadium builder, the famed local contractor Charles Harney, patron of sports at San Francisco U. the private bonds will be liquidated before the city's Stoneham has signed Willie Mays for $70,000 for the season and seems all set. To the south, the Dodgers, who seemed to have the better of the two Coast deals, are still haggling and will not really know their fate until the civic referendum of next June. In the meantime, in the opinion of baseball people in San Francisco, O'Malley has missed a good bet in not putting his club into Wrigley Field. Instead, he wil take the club to the Rose Bowl until such time as the new Dodger Stadium is build, if it is. With 10,000 fewer seats than Ebbets Field, Wrigley Field can produce more revenue because it has so many more box seats than the haunted house in Brooklyn. Besides, they say here, it has the intimacy of Ebbets Field -and "togetherness" built the Dodgers - whereas the Rose Bowl does not. It would make Dodger games a "tough ticket" and entice interest whereas the

pear dismally empty for games that draw ten or twenty thousand. Stoneham's Giants will travel by chartered United Air Lines plane this season. The Dodgers have their own plane - an $800,-000 Convair. How can they afford to let it rust in a hangar between seasons? Trust old Walter. He leased it to Eastern Air Lines

Services Need Unification, Less Red Tape all four services - Army, Navy, By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON - It's a lucky thing the United States has not had to fight a world war in the last few years. For the present system, whereby the heads of the armed services are enmeshed in a bureaucratic apparatus of civilian control, would make war operations far less effective than they were in either of the two world wars in which the United States has been engaged. Today there are four separate armed services represented on the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff and four separate civilian departments dealing with defense problems. "Unification" was the cry in 1947 and 1949, and "simplification" was the slogan in 1953 when

The principal fault is that the military commanders have been removed farther than ever before from the commander-in-chief of all the armed forces - namely, the President, who under the Constitution has the full responsibility for military operations in time of war. Today the Joint Chiefs of Staff is neither an operating body nor a planning unit. The heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force, moreover, are not statutory members of the National Security Council. In time of war a commander in a far-off theater who has all three services under him is required by law to communicate through a civilian agencythe Department of Defense-before reaching the commander-inchief. This is a requirement which cid not exist in either World War I or World War II.

During the last global war, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt had a personal chief of staff, Admiral William Leahy, who acted as a liaison with the military heads of the armed services. At that time the Air Force was not yet officially separated from the Army but the late general "Hap"

Arnold, chief air man, was by instruction of the President required to attend all sessions of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. When it came to voting, however, General George Marshall, chief of staff of the Army, always had General Arnold's proxy in his pocket.

There were thus in fact only two military chiefs - the head of the Army and the head of the Navy - and they had direct access to the President of the United States. Sometimes they didn't even bother to consult the civilian heads of their respective departments. The late Admiral Ernest King, who was Chief of Naval Operations during virtually the entire war, once told this in vogue during World War II ed to tell the Secretary of the impaired by the statutes passed Navy, the late Frank Knox, in since then. every case just what naval acto give battle at Midway. His argument was that a battle plan had to be kept secret and not a single individual was to be told about it ahead of time unless he had to be in some way a part of the operation. The Admiral said that the President, of course, could tell the Secretary of the Navy what he pleased but, as a military man, he himself would tell civilians about battle plans only when they had to know about them or when he was instructed to do so by the President.

This may be an extreme case of separation of the military and civilian in time of war, but it illustrates the compactness of the operational command which was and not a "chairman." The

Senate Aspirants Predict Discord

BALTIMORE Jan 9 P - All players have decided to stay in Maryland's political poker game for a U.S. Senate seat, despite the Tawes-D'Alesandro hand resulting from last night's shuffle. The four other Democratic candidates said today their plans to seek the senatorial nomination were unchanged by Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro's switch from the primary for governor to the senate

Even as the mayor left Baltimore this afternoon to make the change official in the Secretary of State's office at Annapolis, his new opponents angrily denounced the maneuver.

"Dictators," Says Bruce

They also criticized their exclusion from last night's "harmony meeting which resulted in D'Alesandro's withdrawal as an opponent of Comptroller J. Millard Tawes in the primary for governor and his entry into the senatorial race as Tawes' running mate.

$650,000 Valuation Set On Property

Some 238 Allegany County property owners have applied for exemption from county property taxes on their property because they are more than 65 years of age and have total income of less than $100 a month each.

James G. Stevenson, clerk to the county commissioners, said yesterday that he has checked the assessment cards of these elderly property owners and has found the total assessed valuation of their property is in the neighborhood of $650,000. On the basis of the present county tax rate of $2.05, the county received about $13,325 a year in property taxes from these 238 property owners. If all of these applicants were granted tax exemptions, the county commissioners could more than make up for the loss by the addition of Sheriff Edward R. Muir an one cent to the county tax rate.

Ice Skating Is Popular

Hundreds of ice skaters thronged to Gephart Playground and Constitution Park last night as the cold wave maintained its grip on this area. It was the seventh straight night of ice skating here-more than over the entire season in many recent years. The rink at Gephart is being kept in top condition by Recreation Department workers Carl Wolfe and Kenneth Grimes, who have sprayed fine streams of water on the surface twice a day since the area was flooded. Eugene Mason, recreation director, said some 1,500 persons, many of them in family groups, have skated at Gephart since late last week.

Also well used has been the duck pond at Constitution Park. It was in fair condition last night, showing the effects of heavy skating. Since water is not available, it has not been possible to put a new surface on the skating
